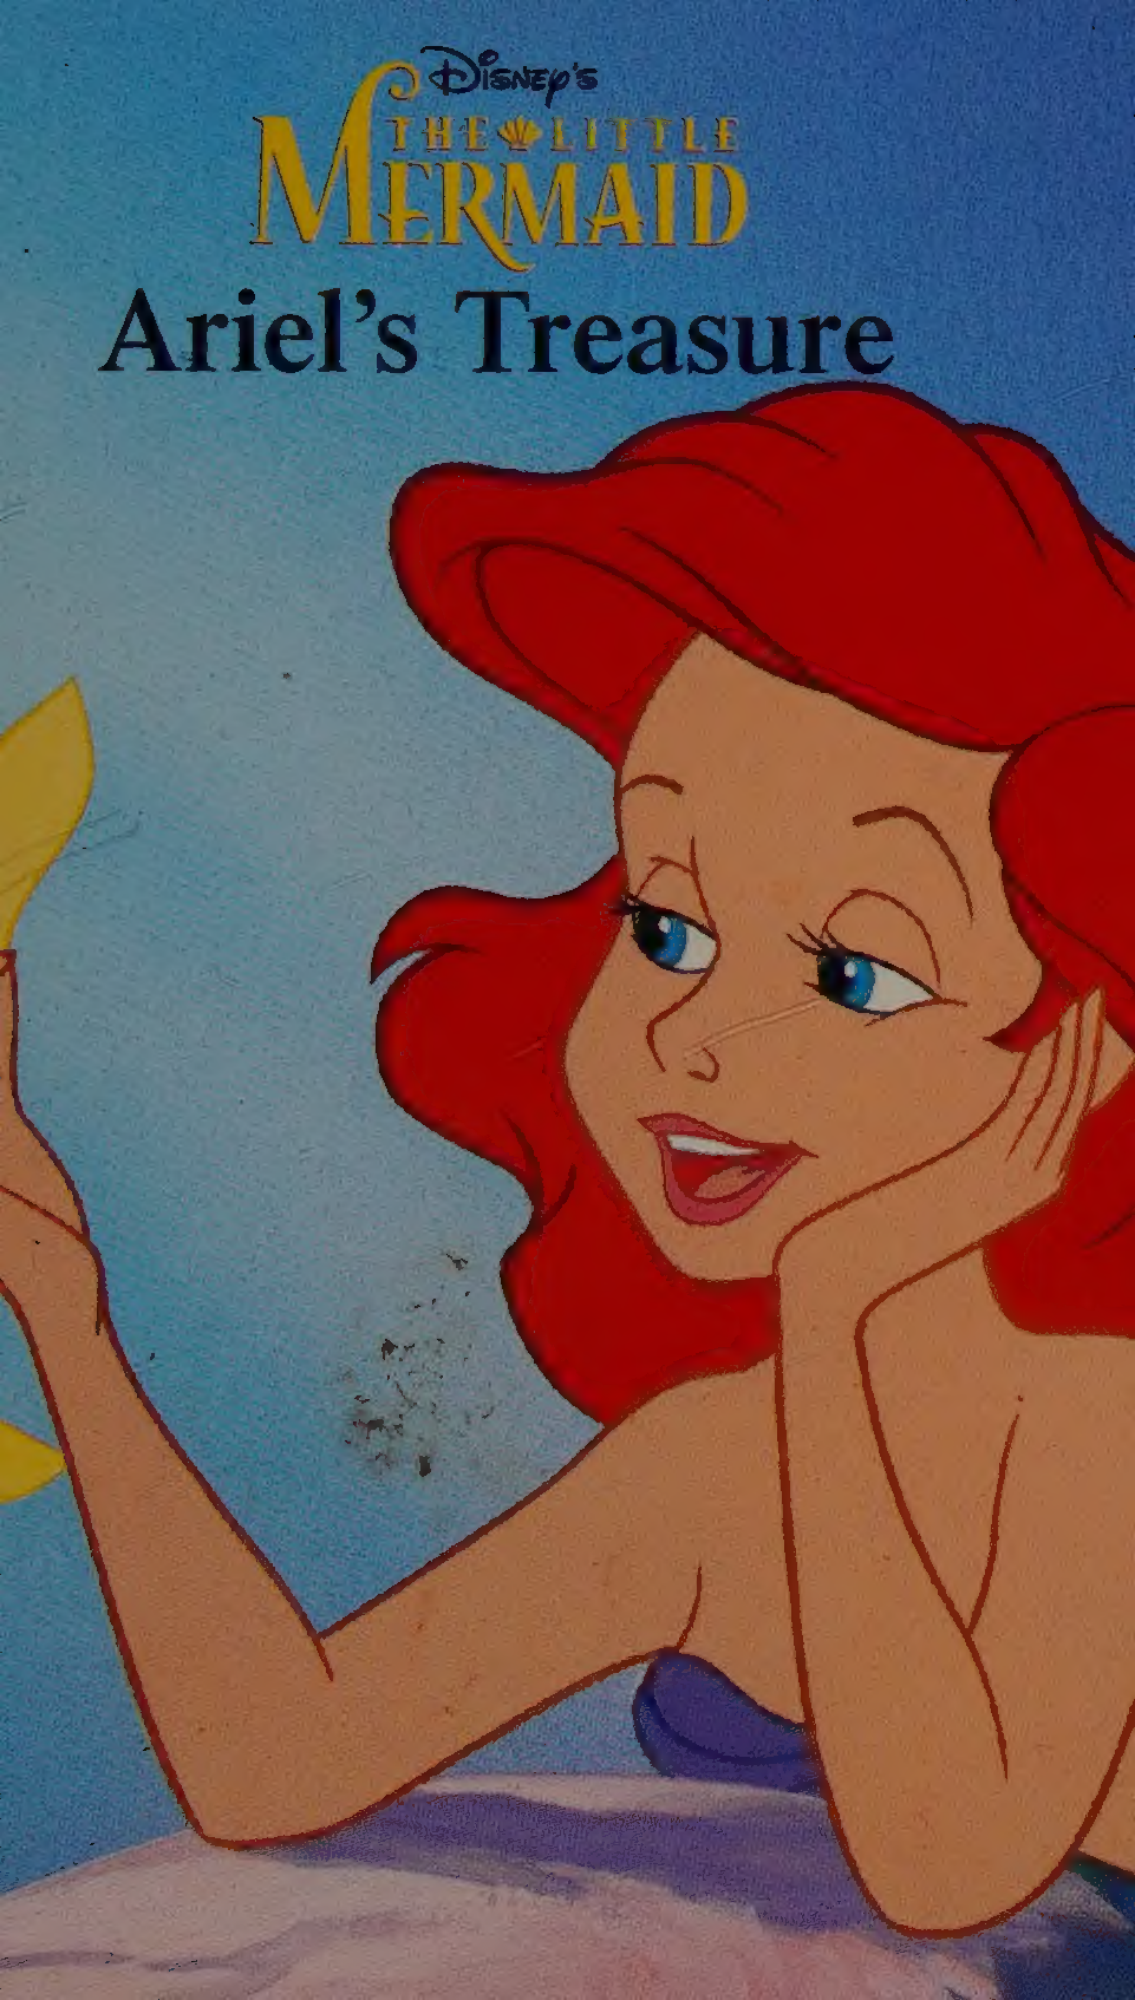
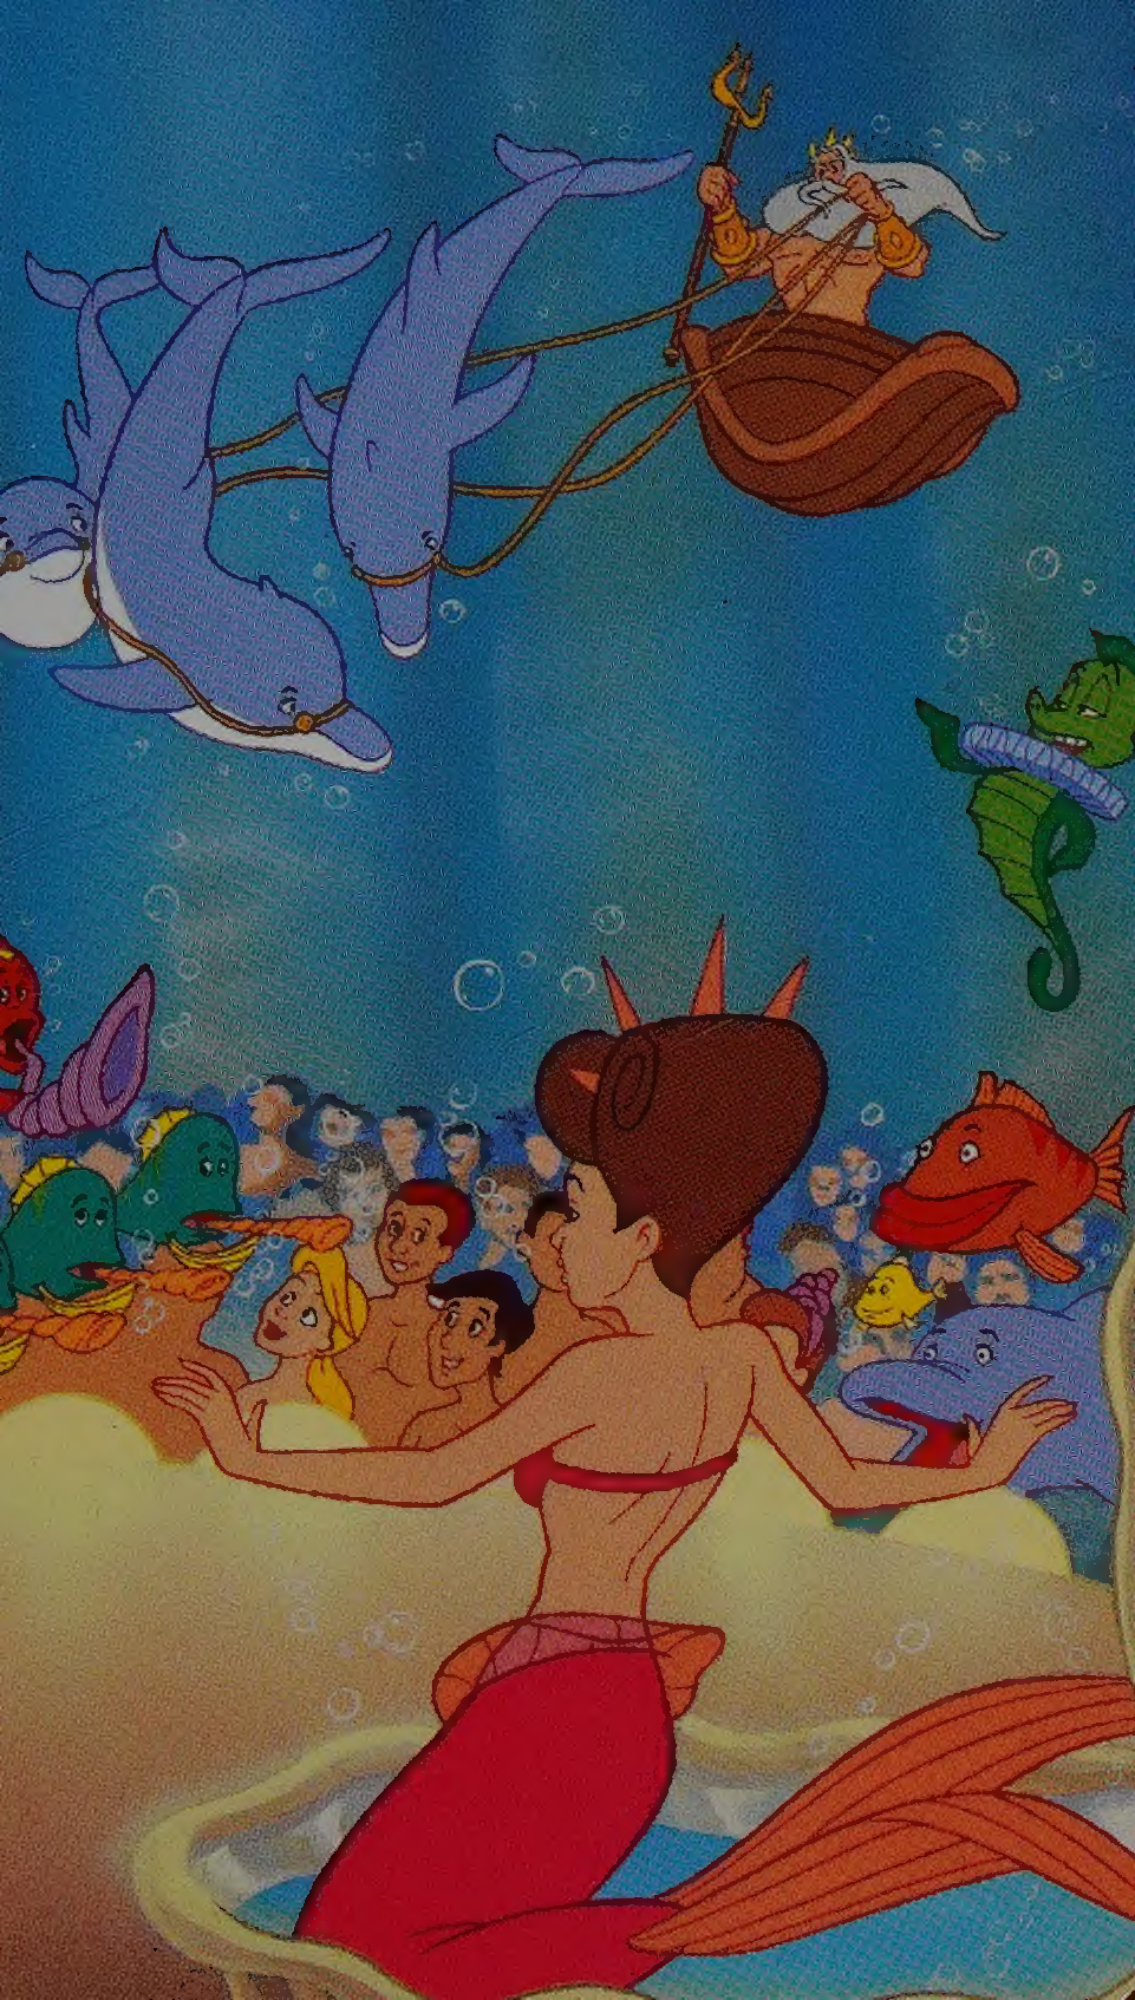
Disney's

The Little Mermaid

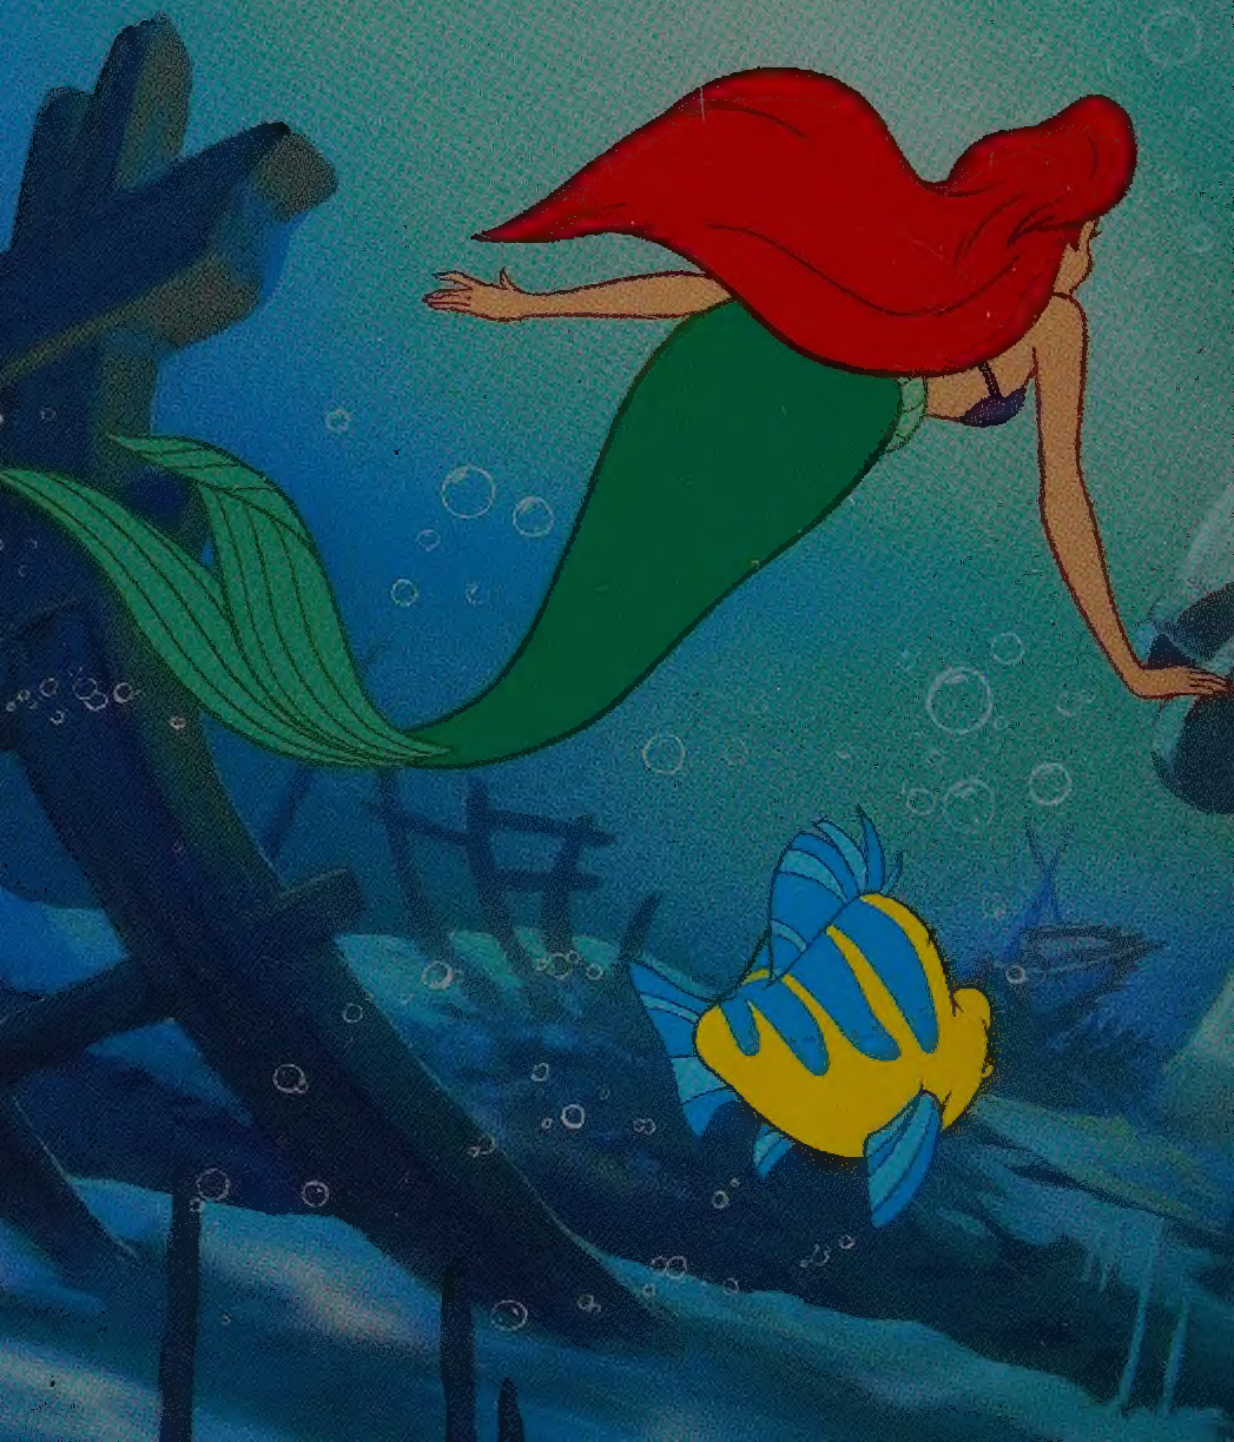
Ariel's Treasure

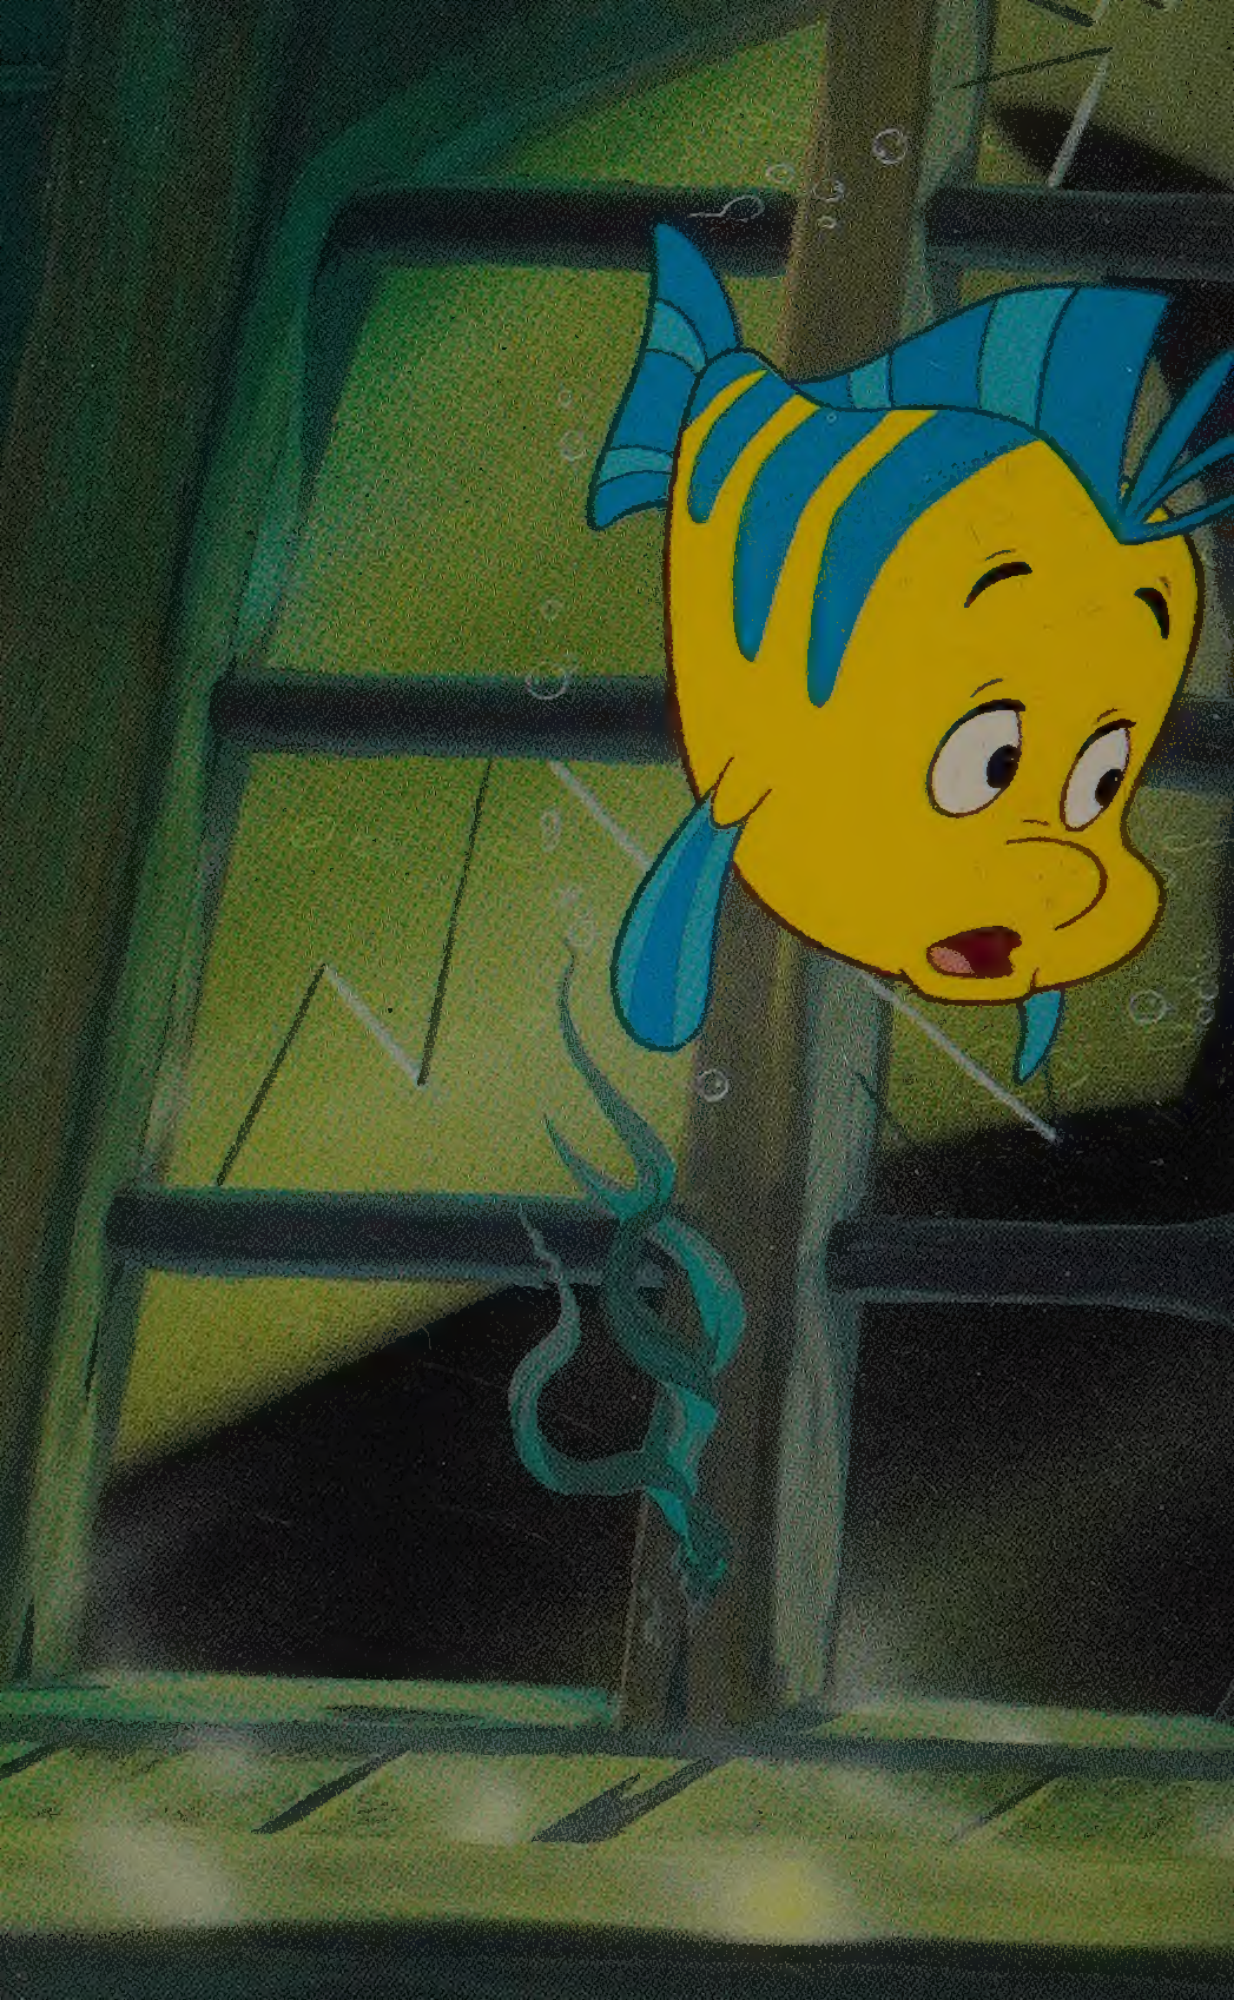


Sebastian was conducting the sea creatures for King Triton's concert. Ariel was supposed to sing for the undersea kingdom. But when it came time for her song, the Little Mermaid was nowhere to be found.

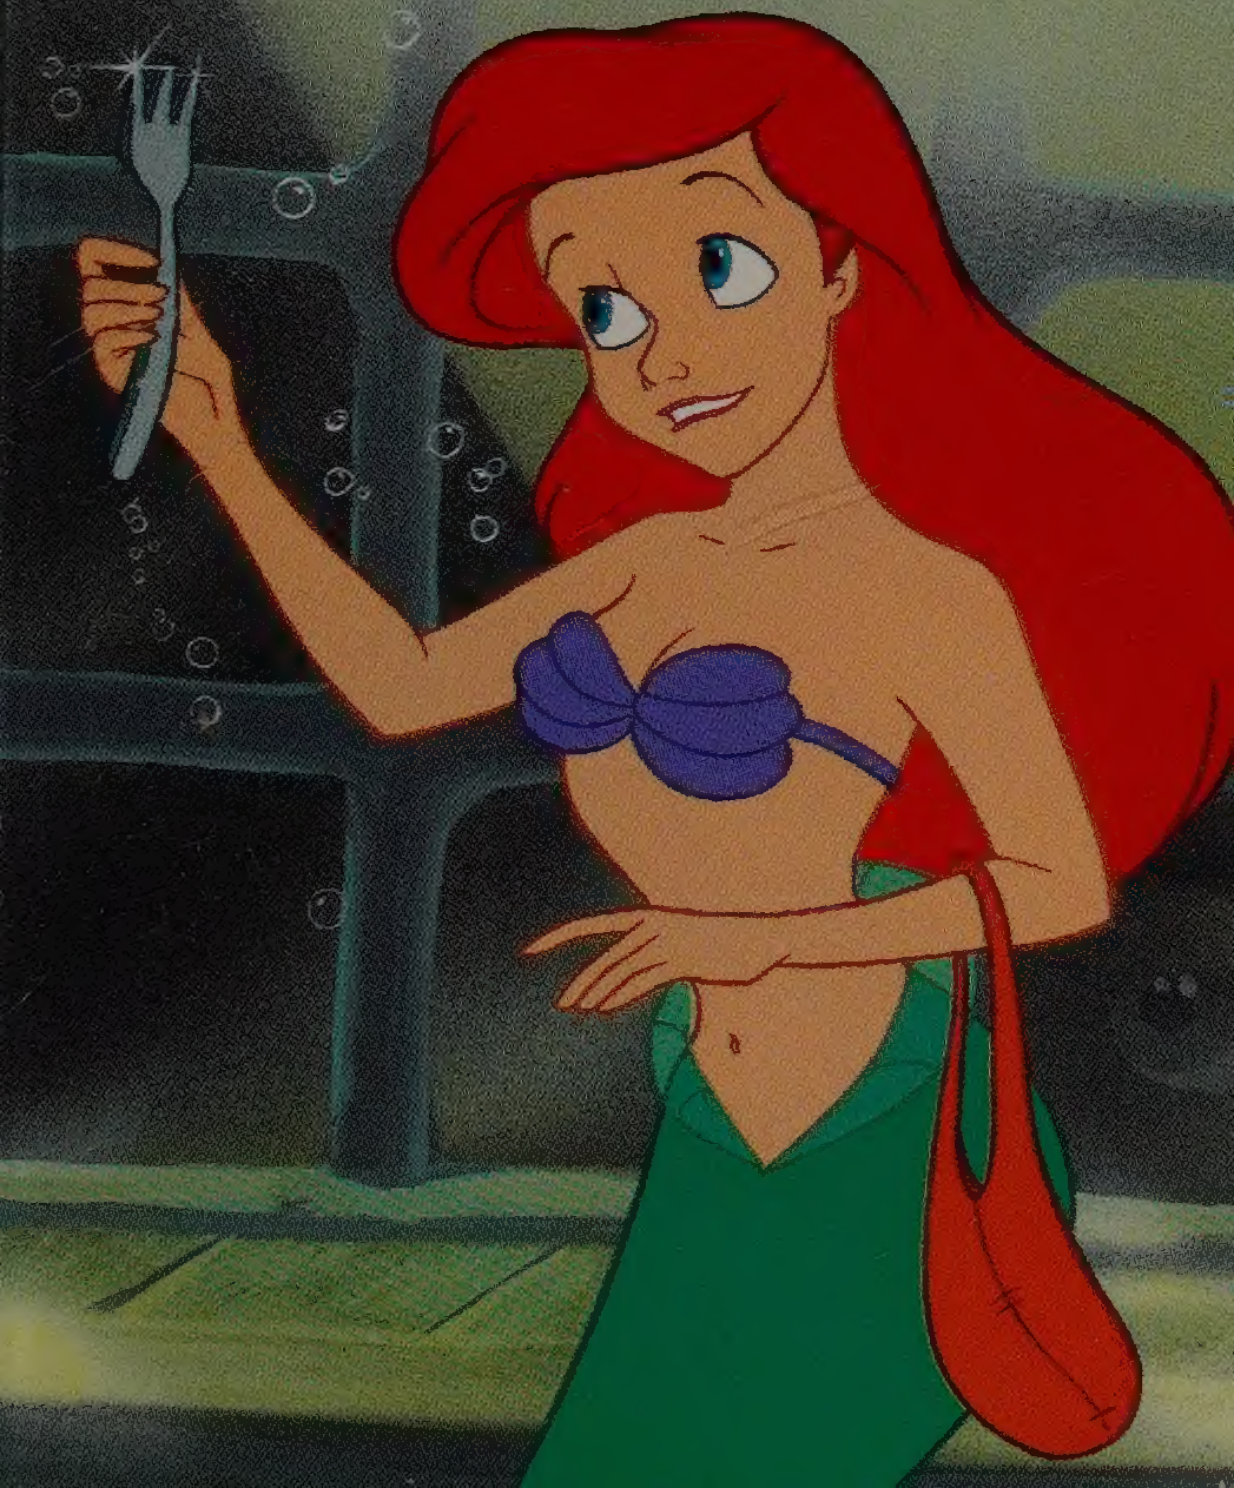


Instead of going to the concert, Ariel was off with her friend Flounder exploring a sunken ship. They were looking for human treasures.

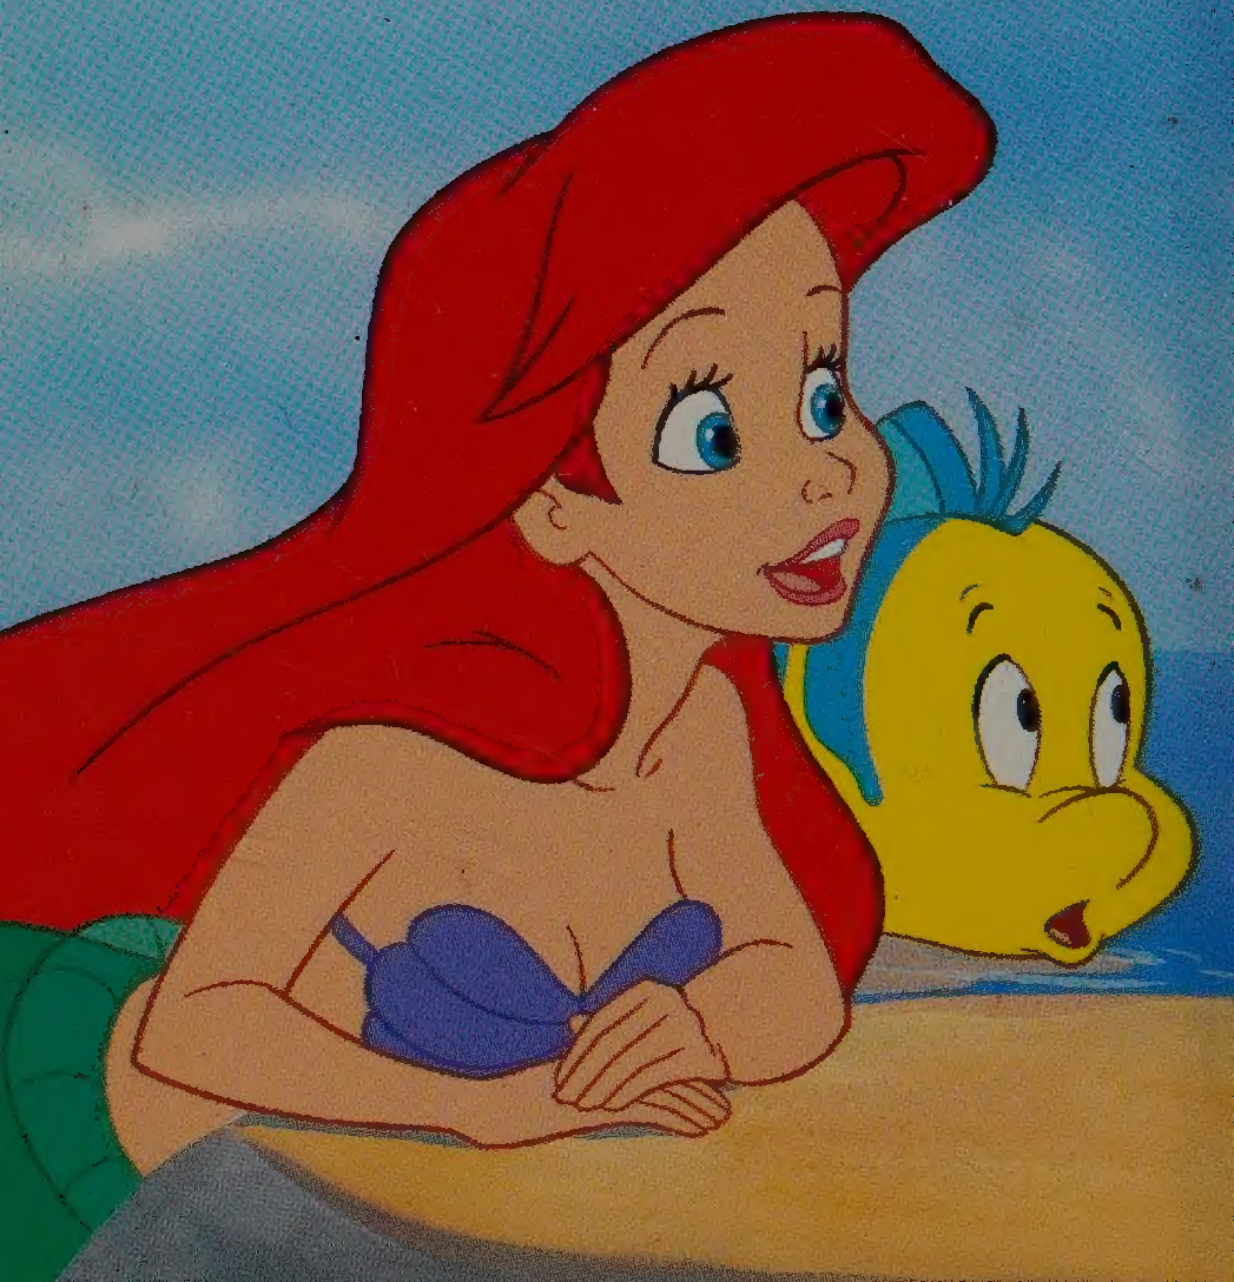


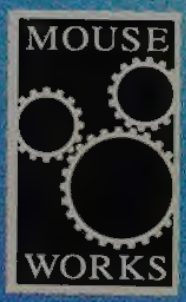


Ariel found something special—she just wasn't sure what it was. But she knew exactly where to go to find out.



She and Flounder went up to the surface to ask Scuttle the seagull about their human treasure. Scuttle agreed that it was special indeed. Ariel had found her very own dinglehopper!





© 1990, 1997 Disney Enterprises, Inc.
Printed in the United States of America
ISBN 1-57082-072-4; CSRVLM97-06
3 5 7 9 10 8 6 4 2

W6-BQU-224